A similar "Tackle Zones" mechanic featured in FIFA 20 and FIFA 21 was pulled from the game. Similarly, "duels" in FIFA 22 are now seamlessly transitioned into full-on battles thanks to the addition of "Tag Zones." Players can be simultaneously contested and players can use the tag to regain balance in the air. FIFA 22 also introduces the return of the "Zonal Defense" mechanic, which allows defenders to gain cover by moving into designated defensive zones. This matches the pitch design on the FIFA 17 demo (seen below). This mechanic was introduced in FIFA 19. The look of each pitch is also drastically improved over FIFA 22. The field is now rendered in 3D, rather than 2D. Another major gameplay mechanic is "various animations," meaning that players are now able to "dance on-the-ball to make shots more authentic," as stated by EA Sports. FIFA 22 Demo FIFA 22's demo is one of the best that I have seen in a FIFA video game. Players can play in the "Mallorca International Cup," a friendly tournament hosted by the region of Spain. The matches consist of familiar teams, such as Barcelona, Real Madrid, and Atlético Madrid. You can play in an exhibition match, as well as an all-star game featuring Juventus and their star studded roster. You can also play with controlled difficulty, where gameplay is clunky, to the none setting, where it is more casual. You can also skip the tutorial and jump right into gameplay without completing the pre-game tutorial. FIFA 22 Demo - Team Match FIFA 22 Demo - Exhibition Match FIFA 22 Demo - All-star Team Match Other Improvements Improvements to AI "play calling" As seen in the hands-on demo, the AI play calling seems vastly improved. Players are no longer prone to predictable kick offs that result in a turnover. The AI is now looking to play to the strengths of each player on the pitch, rather than having the players perform by some scripted word. Improvements to Training I found the training aspects of FIFA 22 to be the best that I have seen in any recent FIFA game. As seen in the hands-on, EA is truly pushing the boundaries of how the 2D gameplay can present tutorials. FIFA 22 Training

Before the show's release, several websites posted recaps of the past seasons, which showed the gaps the program took in its production. At the end of season 5, the production team took over a millenium-old farm located in Meereen. When filming was finished, the indoor scenes were to have been placed in a studio, so the actors' costumes and wigs could be laundered before the start of season 6. The final scene of the sixth season, in which Dany takes the Iron Throne, was filmed on the rooftop of a church in Hungary. It has since been revealed that the scene was filmed at a huge tent used for filming the 2013 movie The Hobbit: The Desolation of Smaug. Restaurant at DewFest to feature vegan 'ch
